Facelift/browlift scars: Many women experience hair loss after cosmetic procedures such as facelifts and browlifts. Sometimes the incisions are made within the hair, and after healing, the scar widens and is difficult to hide.

Other times, scalp hair is removed, leaving the patient with an irregular hairline around the ears or at the nape of the neck. Particularly in women, this makes it difficult to wear the hair up because the scars and lack of hair are much more noticeable. Hair transplants are done both in the scar, and to replace where hair should naturally be growing.

Eyebrows: Loss of eyebrow hair can occur naturally, as part of the aging process, or due to other factors. Frequent plucking or tweezing of the eyebrows can lead to permanent loss of hair. Trauma to the eyebrows can also result in hair loss. Hair transplants can replace the missing hair or recreate a missing eyebrow.

Eyelashes: When patients are missing lashes due to injury or illness, an eyelash transplant can help. —Dr. Paul J. McAndrews, MD, board-certified dermatologist specializing in hair restoration. hairgrowthdoctor.com
